You may have noticed this creepy little ghost peeking at you around the Birnbaum Library recently, with Pace students in hot pursuit. The fall semester's library orientation for first year students at the NYC campus was an interactive mystery game that required students to explore the library and find the answer to the question, who is the ghost in the basement of 41 Park Row? The aim of the Ghost Hunters

Ebooks at Pace by Noreen McGuire, Assistant University Librarian for Collection Development

If you have searched the Pace Library catalog looking for books on your topic, chances are you have come across an eBook or electronic book along with traditional hardcopy or print books. The library catalog is the gateway to access to over 40,000 electronic books!

When you discover an eBook in the catalog, instead of seeing a traditional call number directing you to the library and shelf location of the book, you will see a link to the eBook. We get eBooks from several companies or vendors, so exactly how you read them, or copy pages or chapters from them or borrow them will sometimes be different depending on the book and who we get it from.

We've had access to digitized IT and Business books through Books 24X7 for many years, so they may be the most familiar group of eBooks available at Pace Library. To gain full-text access to the more than 22,000 titles in the Books 24X7 database, you will need to sign up for an account. You can search within a single book to quickly identify the sections where your topic is discussed most. This search within a book feature is available in all of our other eBook platforms as well.

For other recent electronic book content, you are most likely to encounter a link to Connect to ConnectNY e-book in the Library catalog. When you follow the link, you will be asked to select your institution and to login to the eBook through your library. This is because we share access to over 10,000 electronic book titles from a variety of publishers that are made available through a company called EBL (EBook Corporation) with seventeen other libraries that make up the Connect NY consortium. By now, many of you have probably requested print books from our Connect NY partner libraries. But why stop at sharing print books that you have to wait a couple of days for? While you wait for a book to come from another Pace Library or ConnectNY library, you can start reading eBook content right away! They work well together.

Now and then you will encounter another type of eBook from ConnectNY that display as Ingram MyiLibrary books. There are about 300 MyiLibrary titles in the collection which were all chosen during an eBook pilot project by users from the Connect NY libraries.

There are an additional 700 eBooks available to you as a member of the Pace community, from another company called ebrary.

Ghost Hunters: Mission Completed by Jennifer Rosenstein, First Year Outreach Services Librarian

game was to help students become more comfortable with the physical layout of the library, interact with staff, and use the library's online catalog and databases. Over 800 students completed the game and overall response was positive. Students that finished the game had the option of completing an online survey to be entered into a raffle for prizes donated by local businesses. The survey results show that the students regarded library staff as friendly and helpful. Students also learned about the history of lower Manhattan. There were two versions of the game. The ghost in Game A was Jacob Leisler, who was hanged on what is now Pace Plaza in 1691 for leading a rebellion in the aftermath of England's Glorious Revolution; the ghost in Game B was Ann Derrickson, murdered during the Civil War Draft Riots (Mrs. Derrickson was married to an African American and died defending her son from a racist mob). These historical figures were chosen because their deaths raise complicated questions of justice, in keeping with the theme of the first year program. I planned and coordinated the Ghost Hunters game with a great deal of help and input from the rest of the library staff. The circulation, Collaborative Learning Room, and reference staff, were active participants, and helped to keep it running smoothly.

Therapy dogs from The Good Dog Foundation will be visiting the Pace Pleasantville and NYC campuses. Students can spend time with dogs to de-stress. The dogs will visit the Mortola Library on December 13 from 11am- 2pm, and the Kessel Student Center from 2- 4pm. On December 18 the dogs wag tail at the Birnbaum Library from 2:30 – 4:30 pm. Stop by and hang with some furry friends!

Research for Success

This semester the Birnbaum Library hosted a series of information workshops focusing on business and company research. The workshops were designed to provide support to Pace students preparing for interviews, where knowledge of a company's history and competitors can be crucial to landing a position. Philip Poggiali, Instructional Services Librarian, demonstrated how to locate public and private company profiles in online full-text databases such as Business Source Premier, Standard & Poor's NetAdvantage, and Business Insights: Essentials. "I wanted to remind students facing a difficult job market that research leads to employment," Philip says. "I hope our library resources can give them a familiarity with businesses that interest them professionally, so that they will be more informed when they interview." Though the last session of the semester was on Dec. 4, Philip will revive the Research for Success workshops for the Spring 2013 semester.

Around the World

The Birnbaum Library is inviting the Pace community to find their place in the world! Visitors are welcome to take a colored sticker and attach it to their birthplace on a world map located at the entrance to the library. The display was created by First Year Outreach Services Librarian Jennifer Rosenstein.

New Books at Mortola and Birnbaum Libraries

New books are added frequently to the library collections. Faculty and students are welcome to place requests for new materials through the library catalog: <http://www.pace.edu/library/find-resources/library-catalog>

Eloise Flood started full-time as a Reference Librarian in July, following two years of part-time reference work at Birnbaum. She came to librarianship after a career as a children's book editor. Her MLS is from Pratt Institute in NYC, and she earned her BA at Columbia University. Eloise lives in Brooklyn with her family and a charismatic cat named Pluto.

Our ebrary titles and ConnectNY EBL titles are made available on a Patron Driven Acquisition (PDA) model where we only pay for the books our students and faculty actually need and read! For more about ebrary and PDA, please go to an earlier Information Edge article at: <http://tinyurl.com/ebookspta>.

The different eBook sites or platforms may look different, but with the exception of Books 24x7, all of them share common features that allow you (or require you) to set up an account so you can highlight and/or annotate the eBooks you use and so you can place books (keeping your notes and highlights) on some form of a personalized electronic bookshelf, where you can return to the content at a future time. These eBook platforms allow you to read online, or download selected content (or a whole book in some cases) to your desktop. Most platforms will require a separate download of Adobe Digital Editions to read content offline. How you can access or download eBook content from the Pace Library on your Kindle Fire, Nook, iPad or iPhone, or Android device will differ depending on the device. The Bluefire Reader is required on most devices and allows direct downloading of EBL content. If you have questions about using our eBooks on your device, please email me at nmcguire@pace.edu.
